BILLS AND PAPER LOST OR STOLEN

John Starr of Sparksville Separated From Fat Pocketbook Last Night.

SPENT LAST NIGHT IN SEYMOUR

Roll of Bills and Several Notes and Checks Are Among the Missing.

John Starr, a wealthy citizen of Sparksville, has probably heard and read in the past of the dangers of a great city but he has some definite and positive knowledge on the subject now according to his report to the local officers this morning. He spent last night in Seymour on a little outing and some time during the evening lost or was relieved of his pocketbook, which he states contained about $40 in bills and several notes and checks, some of them for large amounts. One note was for over $400 and one check on the Me-dora bank was for over $300. Notice was sent to the bank today to stop payment on the latter. Mr. Starr does not know just when his pocketbook disappeared but has placed the matter in the hands of Marshall Abelle. It will be difficult and dangerous for anyone to realize on the paper but it will probably not be difficult to get rid of the roll of bills at this season of the year.

W. C. T. U. Meeting.

A most delightful meeting of the W. C. T. U. was held Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. W. A. Wylie on North Broadway. Important business was transacted. An excellent program was given as follows: Thanksgiving Greeting. Mrs. R. R. Short, President.
Roll Call.
Special Music. Miss Gertrude Wylie
Devotional Exercises. Mrs. S. Ault
The next meeting will be held December 14, with Mrs. Howard Brown.

On Way to Japan.

The Missionary service held at the Nazarene church last night was well attended. Miss Mamie Edmondson, of Texas who is a missionary, gave an interesting talk on foreign missions. A collection of about eight dollars was taken. Miss Edmondson went to Louisville this morning to give an address at the district assembly.

League Social.

The Elks-Lodge at Columbus will conduct a memorial service Sunday afternoon in memory of the deceased brothers of the lodge. Judge John M. Lewis of this city, has been engaged to make the address.

Telescoped Eggs.

Mrs. Edward Hoene, who lives in Hamilton township, found a freak in the egg line that eclipses anything yet reported. On Tuesday afternoon she broke a hen egg, and inside lying in the usual white and yolk, she found another egg about the size of a pigeon egg. This she broke, and inside this she found a third egg about the size of a blue bird egg. All three of the eggs were perfect in shape. Occasionally a second egg has been found inside the outer shell of an egg, but to find a third egg inside the second egg in an entirely new freak.

HELD RAILROAD COMPANY MUST PAY FORMER EMPLOYEE

John S. Good, Injured in Seymour in 1881, Gets Judgment for Alleged Breach of Contract.

According to a decision of the Marion circuit court the Pennsylvania company must pay damages in the sum of $4,500 to John S. Good, who was injured in a wreck in this city in 1881, for an alleged breach of a contract. At the time of the wreck the defendant was a brakeman on the road, and in the accident lost one arm and received other injuries.

Good declares in his complaint that after the accident he entered into a contract with the company whereby he would not bring a suit for damages for his injuries provided the company would give him lifetime employment, and that he was given a position as flagman at Franklin and later at Indianapolis for thirty dollars a month. During the twenty years of his employment as flagman he was absent from duty only four days, his work continuing for thirteen hours each day. He was discharged in 1902 after the detectives, it is alleged, found that he was neglecting his work by reading newspapers and "loafing" during the hours of duty, when he was expected to guard the crossing. The contract with the railroad company that he should not bring a damage suit was written but his agreement that he was to be given employment for the rest of his life was verbal.

Christmas Turkeys.

We are now buying turkeys for Christmas market. Farmers who sell turkeys now will be sure of high prices. Later in December prices may be lower, as more turkeys are held for the Christmas market than usual. Other poultry is more plentiful this year than ever before, which is a strong factor against extremely high prices for Christmas turkeys.

COURT NEWS

Three New Cases Filed in Jackson Circuit Court.

Three new cases have been filed in the Jackson Circuit Court. Charles W. Clark has filed a suit asking for a divorce from his wife, Olive Clark. The parties were married November 27, 1904, and separated February 5, 1908. The plaintiff alleges that the defendant deserted and abandoned him without cause, and has since refused to live with him.

Richard V. Ditmars, as plaintiff, has also filed a suit against Elmer E. Boone upon an account.

A suit by the First National Bank, of Brownstown, against Theodore Peek upon a demand was filed. The plaintiff asks for $200.

The suit filed some time ago by Rose Nantroup against Virgil Nantroup for a divorce was dismissed upon the motion of the plaintiff.

The case of the Blish Milling Company against the Western Union Telegraph Company for damages was also dismissed, having been compromised out of court.

SENSATIONAL SUIT FOR DIVORCE FILED

At Columbus by Rev. Robert Phillips,
Well Known in Jackson County.

CRUEL TREATMENT CHARGED

Minister Was Finally Compelled to Leave Wife he Alleges.—The Complaint.

Rev. Robert Phillips, who formerly preached in the west part of Jackson county and is well known over the county as well as in neighboring counties has filed a sensational divorce suit at Columbus against his wife, Susan A. Phillips.

He has for some time been pastor of the East Columbus Christian church. The couple were married in 1886 and the plaintiff alleges that for several years past his wife has treated him in a cruel and inhuman manner and on account of this treatment he was finally compelled to leave her. Her whereabouts at present are unknown to him. He charges that she once threatened that if she had a knife she would cut his heart out, that once when holding a meeting at Beck's Grove she caused so much trouble that the good results he sought in the meeting were injured. Several other instances of trouble are cited in the complaint says The Columbus Republican among which were the following:

Once when he was conducting a meeting in Brown county the minister alleges he and his wife went to the home of Silas Wagner to spend the night and that one of the "sisters" of the congregation was there. An argument resulted between this sister and Mrs. Phillips, the complaint alleges, and the minister was called upon to decide the dispute. He decided in favor of the "sister," and he alleges that after he and his wife went to bed she made life miserable for him and declared that he never would have decided in favor of the sister if he had not been "too thick with her."

Once, the minister alleges, he started to fill an appointment when his wife objected to his going and that she rolled in the dust and screamed until people in the neighborhood were attracted. At another time, he alleges, he asked his wife to wash one of the children who was at the table and that she told him to go on and eat and not to be so devilish nice. At another time, the preacher says, he was washing his face in a washpan when his wife came along and kicked the pan away from him.

Chased Runaway Team.

For the engineer of a fast passenger train to stop his engine, dismount from the cab and chase down a runaway team, making down the track as hard as they could go, was the unusual part played last week by Christian Walters, who handles the throttle on B. & O. Southwestern passenger train No. 1. The train was gathering speed one-half mile west of Wheatland when Mr. Walters spied in the distance something on the track. He seemed to overhaul it somewhat slower than most objects he saw. In a short time, however, he saw that it was two horses pulling a carriage down the track as fast as they could go. The carriage was swinging from side to side as it bounced over the rough path. Mr. Walters applied the brakes and stopped with the pilot of his engine but a few feet from the rear axle of the carriage. Then he dismounted and chased the team. One of the horses slipped on the treacherous footing and fell. Then the capture was easy. The team was unhitched and led over the bank. After the carriage was dragged out of the way the big train was taken into Vincennes but a few minutes later than usual.—Bedford Mail.

COMMISSIONERS COURT IN REGULAR SESSION MONDAY

Recount of Ballots in Contest Case for Sheriff's Office Will Be Called Thursday.

The December meeting of the Commissioners Court is expected to be rather a busy session. Besides the regular business which will come before the board they will also hear the contest case which has been filed by William Goecker for a recount of the ballots for the office of county sheriff. This case will be heard on Thursday, December 8, the date having been set by county auditor H. W. Wacker when the papers in the case were filed.

The case promises to one of great interest as the majority for Goecker's opponent, Jerry McKee, was only thirteen as found by the canvassing board. It is not known how long will be required to complete the recount, but it is thought that it will take at least the remainder of the week and probably several days of the following week.

Although the vote for the sheriff's office is the only one that will be recounted, each ballot will be thoroughly examined by the representatives of both parties and for that reason almost as much time will be required as if the vote for all candidates were recounted. There may also be some discussion regarding certain ballots and this will delay the recount.

SUGGESTIONS GIVEN

For Shipping Christmas Packages By Express.

The express company will soon receive many packages which will contain Christmas presents, and for the benefit of the shippers a few suggestions are given which will insure safe and prompt delivery.

In the first place ship as early as possible before the 18th if convenient. The express company will give the consignor a label reading, "Don't Open Until Christmas" which will inform the consignee that the box contains a Christmas gift.

On the inside of the package place the name and address of the sender so that if the tag or label on the outside is destroyed the package will be delivered safely.

Use wooden boxes for packing. Glass or fragile articles should be well protected. It may cost a few cents more, but the danger or loss or damage is very much reduced. True if the shipment is lost or damaged the Express Company will pay for it, but that will give your friend no pleasure.

Write the address in full, State, County, City, Street and Number, on the box or package with ink, or crayon. Tags are frequently torn off and lost. Also write the name and address of the sender.

If you want to prepay charges, write the word "Paid" in large plain letters on the package.

Insist on a receipt and see that the amount paid is marked on the receipt and package, and the value of the package declared thereon.

If not convenient to ship in wooden boxes, use strong wrapping paper (not newspaper), and tie with strong cord.

If package contains anything of perishable nature, write word "Perishable" in large plain letters on the box, or package, to insure special attention and first delivery.

GOVERNORS CLIP THEIR PROGRAM

Conference Will Be Brought to Close Tonight.

SOCIAL SIDE IS UPPERMOST

Louisville's Exemplification of the Best Traditions of Southern Hospitality Has Given the Visiting Executives Little Time For Indulgence in Learned Discussions of the Mere Affairs of State and Government.

Louisville, Ky., Dec. 1.—Discussion on "Conservation from the Standpoint of the State," "Employers' Liability and Workmen's Compensation Acts," "Power of the Government," a luncheon at the Seelbach hotel, and reception at the Woman's club last night, ended the first day's session of the conference of governors in Louisville. It became manifest early that the business features of the meeting of the governors of the various states would have to be either confined to brief intervals, when entertainments were not in order, or eliminated entirely. It was decided to eliminate discussions of the election of senators by popular vote, income tax amendments, etc., and to devote all the time possible in the business meetings to discussions of other subjects already arranged. Last night there was an executive session which lasted for an hour and a half, but the measures brought before the governors were not given out for publication. It is stated, however, that many of the subjects which were to have been taken up at this session of the conference were killed.

"Conservation of human life" will be another subject which will be taken up this afternoon. The employers' liability law, child labor, pollution of streams, health, tuberculosis and other phases of conservation of human life will be touched upon during the discussion.

It has been decided by the governors of the conference to bring the meetings to a close this evening, instead of Saturday evening, as suggested in the tentative program, and the discussions have thus been limited, and the social side of the program rearranged. It is planned to have the guests attend a circus tomorrow night, which has been designated as "Governors' night."

Several notable functions will be given during the time the distinguished visitors will spend in Louisville. Handsome entertainments mark practically every moment of the time for the governors' wives. It is announced that the next meeting place of the governors' conference will be at Spring Lake, N. J., during the first week of September, 1911.

MERGER PROPOSED

Important Deal Marks Plans of Chicago Railway Company.

Chicago, Dec. 1.—Andrew Cooke bought the Chicago Consolidated Traction company at an auction sale conducted by Master in Chancery Bishop under the orders of the United States Circuit court. He paid $1,425,000 for the street railway system that covers the outlying portions of the north and west sides of Chicago and extends out into several of the suburbs.

The property he bought is bonded for some $15,000,000 and has been officially valued by the city's board of supervising engineers at $4,000,000.

The new purchaser has been active in reorganizing the Consolidated company and his purchase is said to mean an important step toward the reorganization of the system and the transfer of title to the Chicago Railway company.

A New Municipal Activity.

St. Paul, Dec. 1.—Rev. Dr. Morgan of the Bethel House believes St. Paul should have a municipal dance hall. He is urging his plan upon Mayor Keller, who said that if it could be put into practical shape he would urge its adoption by the city council.

Three Sailors Drowned.

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., Dec. 1.—Three men were drowned when the tug General of the Great Lakes Dock company sank after colliding with the steamer Athabasca off Lime Island, at Mary's passage, during a snowstorm.

Suspicion of Foul Play.

Sullivan, Ind., Dec. 1.—It is believed that Riley Hamby, whose dead body was found on the interurban tracks, was a victim of robbers. He left his home with $20 on his person. When found he did not have a cent.

Then He Killed Himself.

The Word Calico.

The word "calico" has a queer origin. Many centuries ago the first monarch of the province of Malabar, in Hindustan, gave to one of his chiefs as a reward for distinguished services his sword and all the land within the limit of which a cock crowing at a certain temple could be heard. From this circumstance the little town which grew up in the center of this territory was called Calceda, or "the cock crowing." After it was called Calicut, and from this place the first cotton goods were imported into England bearing the word calico.

Many persons find themselves affected with a persistent cough after an attack of influenza. As this cough can be promptly cured by the use of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, it should not be allowed to run on until it becomes troublesome. Sold by Andrews-Schwenk Drug Co.

Parricides in France.

The French penal system, following more closely the Roman law than does the English, has special provisions for parricides. Formerly the criminal's right hand was amputated, and if he were a man he was then broken at the wheel. A woman was burned. Today the parricide is conducted barefooted to the guillotine. He has a white robe and on his head a black veil. Besides these indignities he is required to hear the sentence read in public by the clerk of the court at which he was condemned. Under the Roman law the patria potestas obtained, and in France it is effective today in a modified form; hence parricide is considered so horrible a crime.—London Globe.

The peculiar properties of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy have been thoroughly tested during epidemics of influenza, and when it was taken in time we have not heard of a single case of pneumonia. Sold by Andrews-Schwenk Drug Co.

The Book That Fitted.

This masterpiece was handed in one day to the librarian of a public library: "Dear Lady—Please send by Bertha a book that will agree with her pa. He is forty-three years old, has never been much of a reader, is laid up with a lame back, no appetite, but terrible thirst all the time, a quick pulse and temperature that stays at about 100. Please send something that will not excite him and send his temperature up any higher."

It took a consultation of all the high-brows in the library to prescribe a literary dose for pa that would not conflict with the medical bulletin. They sent him "The Swiss Family Robinson." His temperature did not go up.—Ladies' Home Journal.

Thackeray and Dickens.

Thackeray was much taller than Dickens. His form, indeed, approached the gigantic in its proportions. He looked far older, although the two men were much about the same age. His immense head, his broad forehead and his prematurely white hair gave him an appearance of authority and even of severity, which one might have thought would prove intimidating to a stranger. Yet I at least never felt it so. He seemed to me to be less self-assertive, less conscious of his superiority, than Dickens appeared to be.—Justin McCarthy's Reminiscences.

Scrub yourself daily, you cannot clean inside. This means clean stomach, bowels, blood, liver; clean, healthy tissue in every organ. Moral: Take Hollister's Rocky Mountain Tea, a thorough cleanser. Try it tonight. Andrews-Schwenk Drug Co.

Words Passed.

Judge—You say that words passed between the accused and his wife. Did you hear what they were? Witness—No; I didn't hear them, but I saw them. Judge—Saw them? Witness—Yes. They were in the dictionary that he threw at her.

Cleanliness is the first law of health, inside as well as outside. Let Hollister's Rocky Mountain Tea be your internal cleanser; then your organs will be pure and clean, your health good, your system right. Start tonight. Andrews-Schwenk Drug Co.

Merely a Trifle.

"I suppose your late uncle didn't fail to remember you in his will?" said the sympathetic friend. "You could hardly call it a remembrance," replied the poor relation. "It was more like a faint recollection."—Chicago News.

Brainy.

"And so you will not believe anything you cannot see?" inquires the other man gleefully. "Well, you think you have brains in your head, don't you?"

"Yes."

"But you can't see them, can you? What makes you think you have them, then?"

"Why, I think I have brains because we think with brains, and if I didn't have brains how could I think? If the brains aren't there to think with I can't think I have them, can I?"—Life.

For That Dull Feeling After Eating.

I have used Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets for some time, and can testify that they have done me more good than any tablets I have ever used. My trouble was a heavy dull feeling after eating.—David Freeman, Kempt, Nova Scotia. These tablets strengthen the stomach and improve the digestion. They also regulate the liver and bowels. They are far superior to pills but cost no more. Get a free sample at Andrews-Schwenk Drug Company's drug store and see what a splendid medicine it is.

The Language of Flowers.

Some men were telling dog stories after a day's shooting. After some time, when the tales had got very tall, one little man said:

"I have got a dog that makes all yours seem fools. I generally feed him myself after dinner, but the other day a friend dropped in, and the poor beast slipped my mind. After the meal we went into the garden. The dog scratched up a flower and laid it at my feet, with the most yearning look in his eye—it was a forget-me-not."

No more dog stories were told that evening.—Exchange.

Since then I always keep a bottle of Foley's Honey and Tar in the house. Accept no substitutes. A. J. Pellens.

TROLLEY ROADS KEEPING QUIET

They Want Safety Conference Held in Chambers.

GOVERNOR DESIRES PUBLICITY

Proposed Conference Between Governor of Indiana, the State Railroad Commission and Representatives of the Interurban Roads of the State Will Not Be Public, It Is Said, if the Roads Can Have Their Way.

Indianapolis, Dec. 1.—Whether the proposed conference of the governor, the railroad commission and representatives of the interurban roads of the state, to consider the recommendations of the commission growing out of the recent fatal trolley wrecks, will be public is still an open question. Opposition to the conference being made public is understood to have arisen among the interurban men. The governor several days ago expressed a wish to have an open conference, and will probably insist that it be such.

Friends of the governor, who believe that a necessity exists for some recommendations to the general assembly on the question of regulating trolley lines, are urging him to have an open conference and give the people of the state a clear statement of what the state proposes to do concerning trolley regulation, together with a comprehensive understanding of the findings and recommendations of the railroad commission, based on investigations of the recent wrecks.

The commission has filed with the governor a special report on its findings and recommendations, and this, it is understood, will form the basis for the conference discussions. Under the law the commission is not permitted to make the recommendations public unless the roads directly concerned by them fail to comply with the recommendations. However, the special report to the governor, it is claimed, is not restricted by the law in question.

While the actual date of the conference has not been selected, it is understood that it will be called for some day before Dec. 15.

COSTLY FREIGHT CRASH

The Pennsylvania Has a Disastrous Wreck Near Richmond.

Richmond, Ind., Dec. 1.—A freight wreck on the Pennsylvania at Greens Fork, ten miles west of Richmond, resulted in a property loss of more than $50,000 and tied up traffic on the Richmond division. One brakeman was slightly injured but all other trainmen escaped.

The westbound local freight had stopped at the Greens Fork station to receive and unload freight when a westbound through freight rounded the curve just east of the town and before the engineer had time to reverse and apply the air, the through freight crashed into the rear of the local. The engineer and his fireman jumped.

The through freight's locomotive plowed through six cars of the local, piling the debris high on both sides. The passenger station was almost demolished as was also a building on the opposite side of the track.

JAIL TERRORS PALE FOR MILLIONAIRES

Four Nebraska Convicts Pick Their Own Quarters.

Hastings, Neb., Dec. 1.—Having made a month's canvas of the Nebraska jails and decided that the one here offered the most advantages, four millionaire cattlemen came here and began serving their terms. The men are W. G. Comstock, Bartley R. Richards, Charles Jamison and Aquila Triplett. They were convicted in the federal court of land frauds in fencing government lands and sentenced to a year in jail.

The four men are not to be treated like ordinary prisoners. They took a Japanese chef, who will do their cooking. They ordered expensive furniture and carpets sent to the jail for their rooms. In addition, they bought a large and well-selected library. They have subscribed for a number of daily papers and many of the leading magazines. The windows of their cells have been hung with expensive lace curtains. The floors are carpeted and in a general way the cells have the appearance of well-appointed club rooms.

In Bad Fix

"I had a mishap at the age of 41, which left me in bad fix," writes Mrs. Georgia Usher, of Conyers, Ga. "I was unconscious for three days, and after that I would have fainting spells, dizziness, nervousness, sick headache, heart palpitation and many strange feelings. "I suffered greatly with ailments due to the change of life and had 3 doctors, but they did no good, so I concluded to try Cardui.

"Since taking Cardui, I am so much better and can do all my housework."

Do not allow yourself to get into a bad fix. You might get in so bad you would find it hard to get out. Better take Cardui while there is time, while you are still in moderately good health, just to conserve your strength and keep you in tip top condition.

In this way your troubles, whatever they are, will gradually grow smaller instead of larger—you will be on the up-grade instead of the down—and by and bye you will arrive at the north pole of perfect health.

CHRISTMAS.

The Little Snoozers had never had a Christmas, and Mary, the oldest child, was twelve years old.

Then Mary read a book with such a glowing description of a Christmas in a city home that her blood tingled with delight and desire.

"Why, Dick," she said to her ten-year-old brother, "all we've got to do is to hang up our stockings by the chimney and an old man named Santa Claus comes down and fills them chuck full of pretty things. It seems too good to be true, but that is what the book says."

"Let's all hang up our stockings tomorrow night and see what comes of it. Shall we?"

Dick was agreed; so were all the rest.

Now, Reuben Snoozer, father of the children, was not a poor man, but he frowned down all holidays, calling them "nothin' but tarna foolishness."

"OH, PAPA, YOURS IS DE BIGGEST!" so when he came into the great farm kitchen that night, after the children had gone to bed, he "ha-ha-ha-ha" loudly, while he bustled himself filling up the little stockings.

Next morning the children, fumbling excitedly in their stockings, found only sticks, stones and corn cobs and went back to bed in chagrin.

"Never mind," said Mary, trying to comfort the others. "Santa Claus must have made a mistake, for not one of you is bad. Wait until next year and perhaps he will understand by that time."

Of course she found out all and went about with a smiling face for two months before the next Christmas. She determined that the smaller children should have a Christmas if she had to make it for them herself. She took no one into her confidence but her brother Dick. She needed him to cut the tree, after father and mother had gone to bed, and help her to set it up and trim it.

How noiselessly they worked that still Christmas eve! And when the tree was all loaded down with festoons of popcorn, red apples, gilded nuts, paper angels and gingerbread horses, wonderfully and fearfully made.

It was 1 o'clock in the morning when she and Dick went to bed, but he was too happy to sleep. It was not later than 5 o'clock Christmas morning when Mary awakened the younger children and they all stole softly downstairs.

Dick lighted the lamp, and then such shouts of delight filled the big kitchen that Reuben Snoozer sprang up in bed, listening intently.

"Blame them youngsters!" he exclaimed. "Wonder what they're up to now!"

"Poor little dears!" sighed their mother. "Might think they'd found a gold mine the way they holler. Just wait until I get down there. Don't be hard on 'em, Reuben. Remember you were a child once."

"Never had no such foolishness when I was a boy, you may depend on it," and in his haste Reuben Snoozer ran downstairs in his bare feet.

He could hardly believe his senses when he opened the door that led into the kitchen, for there was a fire in the great cook stove, a decorated Christmas tree in one corner and his children were sitting around on the floor, their laps filled with oranges, apples, cake and candy which they had just emptied out of their stockings, and when little Reuben, his namesake, with great shining eyes, sprang to him, exclaiming, "Papa, dere's sumpin in you's and mamma's 'tockins, too; Santa Claus didn't forget yours neiser," he never felt so cheap in his life.

With a grimace he took down his great woolen sock from a nail and thrust in his hand, to draw out one of Mary's famous gingerbread horses.

"Oh, papa, yours is de biggest!" shouted little Reuben. "Old Santy knowed you like big horses."

Then the farmer took out his handkerchief and snorted into it with suspicious vehemence.

Later he said to his wife: "You could have knocked me down with a feather. I was never so touched as when them ar children wanted me myself to have a Christmas when I had allus kicked so hard against them havin' one. Let's have a turkey dinner, with mince pie and plum pudding."

The little Snoozers were never so happy in their lives before, and, though they have had many a delightful Christmas since, they declare they never enjoyed one so much as the first.

If you own a camera the vexed problem of what to give as Christmas presents may be delightfully solved. This presupposes, however, that you have made as diligent use of your vacation as one young woman did last summer. Each of her circle of friends received a gift from her camera given in a novel manner.

For the invalid friend were many reminders of days in the country in the way of suggestive scenes—as a robin's nest in the crotch of an old apple tree, pussy willows growing beside a brook, an old mill in its picturesque setting.

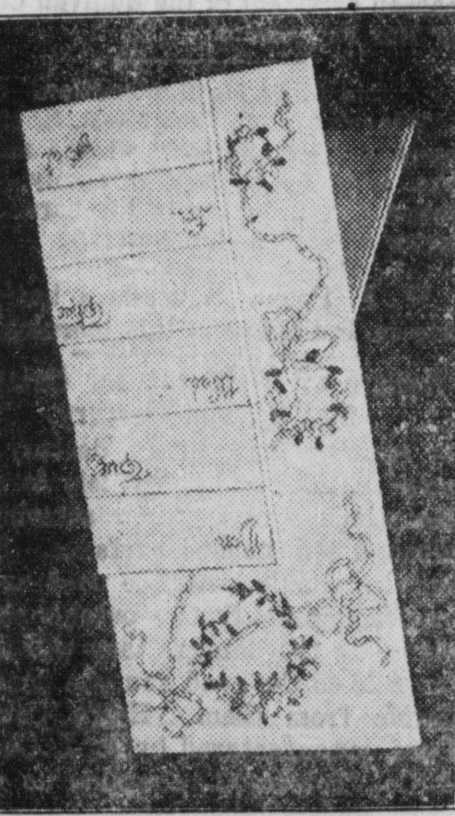

A suitable frame for the pictures was made from birch bark with an oval of glass to be hung in the window, where it formed a beautiful transparency. A few more photos were added to the collection, so that a new and charming view could be slipped in for every day of the month.

For a little girl she made a book from cardboard shaped like a little house. This was covered with grass linen in the natural color. The doors and windows were touched up in sepia, and on the old fashioned doorplate was the name "Mother Goose." All through the pages of the book moved a lively procession of Mother Goose friends and relatives sketched in with pen and ink.

Eggshell board comes in pretty, delicate tints of blue and pink and may be made up into little photo booklets, the pages decorated with wild or garden flowers, scrolls or dainty figures, suitable for the photos to be framed, as for a child's photos taken in sequence, two or three in a year, perchance, from the tender age of the baby to "sweet sixteen."

Crocheted slippers are not novelties, but the dainty ones seen in the illustration are very new. They are crocheted not from wool, but from mercerized cotton in a lovely shade of baby blue. At the toe is inserted a square of white crocheted cotton flecked with black in imitation of ermine fur. At the top of the shoe is a turnover effect of the ermine caught together with a tiny rosette of blue ribbon. The soles are not of fleece, but of leather, satin lined.

with an easel back is about twenty inches in height and a third of that measurement in width. The material may be linen or silk, but moire poplin is far the most attractive as a background for pretty ribbons and embroidery in dainty blues, pinks, white and green. The pockets are six in number, one for each day of the week, and the proper abbreviation for each day is printed thereon in gold.

A Fashion Chat on Misses Frocks

Furnished by Pictorial Review

222 West 39th Street, New York City

The simple lines which characterize the present styles are especially becoming to the graceful figures of young girls. While retaining all of this simplicity many beautiful frocks are developed in the dainty silk and cotton tissues, colored linen, batiste or linen which may be worked all over in an eyelet design; simpler frocks but charming in their way, are made of the most inexpensive gingham, chambray, dimity and figured lawns. The young girl in her teens is the one who can wear the open-neck waist with impunity, and to her it is universally becoming. The style of the neck may be square, round or cut in a little deeper outline and the plaited or gathered frill is a dainty addition. Then the same frock may have a lace yoke and collar added if desired.

The dresses for misses are delightfully girlish. The designs are simple in line and are made up with just enough decoration, whatever the trimming may be, to suggest a dainty effect without appearing elaborate. Colored and white dress linen are immensely popular for frocks, sailor and coat suits. Then, too, there are several linen finished fabrics such as ramlie, hesper cloth and pongee that are less expensive than linen and are made up in the same way. The daintiest of thin dresses are made of dimity and batiste, dimity being less expensive but charming whether plain white, crossbarred or printed in delicate yellow, green and brown floral effects or in foulard colors with dots. Batiste that is covered with embroidered dots, small figures or has a fancy stripe trims itself sufficiently.

Side plaited ruffles are used to trim dresses of soft materials, and one of the newest ideas in skirts is illustrated in PICTORIAL REVIEW PATTERN No. 3649. This frock is simple and charming in every line and so girlish that none but a girl in her teens would look well in it.

It is made with a lining having one-seam sleeves perforated for shorter length, high or round neck, sleeves combined with outer front and back and attached seven-gored plaited skirt lengthened by a circular flounce with straight side-plaited ruffles. Sizes 14, 16 and 18 years. Size 16 requires 6 1/2 yards of 44-inch material.

PICTORIAL REVIEW PATTERN No. 3639 is an attractive garment that conveys a suggestion of youthfulness. The dainty frill around the neck can be made of plaited lace or silk of contrasting color, if so desired.

There is absolutely nothing on this dress in the way of trimming except this little frill and still it has a dressy appearance. It is the style and cut of the garment and this is what gives distinction to Pictorial Review patterns.

This costume is also made with a lining, either high or low neck, three-quarter length sleeves and has an attached five-gored skirt lengthened by a straight gathered flounce. Sizes are 14, 16 and 18 years and a medium size requires 3/4 yards of 40 inch material.

These patterns including cutting and construction guides, are 15 cents each number.

Died Suddenly.

James Bennett, a well known citizen of Carr township died suddenly Tuesday of apoplexy. He was in his usual health and after eating his dinner he was seated in a chair and a short time later was seen to fall over. A physician was called, but he expired before he arrived. He was eighty-one years of age. He was born in Utica, Clark county, and moved to Washington county when he was quite young. In 1868 he moved to this county where he has resided since. He is survived by eight children, one of whom is H. T. Bennett of this city. He also leaves twenty-seven grandchildren and three great grandchildren. The funeral services were held this afternoon.

Child Found Dead.

The infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Claud Perry of Crothersville, was found dead in bed this morning. He was two and one-half months of age. The funeral services will be held Friday afternoon.

Ellsworth Post, G. A. R. will elect officers Friday night.

MAKE LIFE WORTH LIVING

Says Elder Cunningham.

When pure healthy blood courses through every vein and artery of the body, the organs are in a healthy condition, and a strenuous active life is a pleasure to man or woman.

But if the blood is impure and sluggish, the appetite poor, digestion weak and vitality not up to the standard, life is a burden; then you need Vinol, our delicious cod liver and iron tonic, without oil. Such evidence as comes from Henry Cunningham, elder of the Baptist church, Kinston, N. C., should be convincing. He says, "I was run-down and weak from general debility, and suffered from vertigo. I took Vinol with the most gratifying results. I gained in health and strength and now feel unusually well."

Elder Cunningham's recovery was due to the combined action of the medicinal elements of cod's livers, aided by the blood making and strength creating properties of tonic iron contained in Vinol.

Try a bottle of Vinol with the understanding that your money will be returned if it does not help you. The Andrews-Schwenk Drug Co.

"THE FLAMING ARROW"

Lincoln F. Carter's Famous Play at The Majestic Tonight.

"The Flaming Arrow" will be the attraction at the Majestic this evening. The story is one of which the emotional interest is intense, the comedy element unusually strong and the sensational features make it equally attractive to the gallery and the parquette. The story centers around "White Eagle" and Indian brave and "The White Lilly" a beautiful daughter of Col. Fremont of the U. S. Army. The scene is cast at Ft. Reno in the frontier days and is historically correct in every detail.

A play should entertain and amuse. We all know that. At the same time there should be depth and strength to it. It should instruct along some certain lines. If it lacks this element the players cannot become sufficiently interested in it to do good work—their best work. Prices 35c-50c-75c.

MR. FAIRBANKS HOUSE GUEST OF PRESIDENT

Much Speculation As to Significance of Coming Visit.

Washington, Dec. 1.—Former Vice President Fairbanks has been invited to Washington to remain several days as the house guest of President Taft. Mr. Fairbanks will arrive about the 10th inst., to attend the Gridiron club dinner to be given one week from next Saturday night. The president, learning of Mr. Fairbanks' intended visit, took occasion to play the role of host.

There is much speculation as to the political significance of Mr. Fairbanks' visit. It is understood that he will discuss with the president plans for rehabilitating the Republican party in Indiana. It is said of the former vice president that he would accept no office. They understand that the post of ambassador to Great Britain was offered him in the Taft administration and declined; also it is known that he declined one or two special diplomatic missions.

IT MADE HIM MAD

To Think That Murderer of Kinsman Escaped Hanging.

Mt. Carmel, Ill., Dec. 1.—Because the confessed murderer of his nephew, Joseph Bryant, received only a twenty-five year sentence, Cree Bryant attempted to kill the prisoner, Charles Brent, as the latter was being taken from the courtroom. He followed behind, drew a revolver and leveled it at the back of Brent's head. A bystander knocked Bryant's arm up as he pulled the trigger and the bullet went high. After a struggle Bryant was arrested.

Young Bryant was killed on Brent's houseboat, the murderer confessing he beat him almost to death while he was helplessly drunk and then threw him, still alive, into the river three weeks ago. Knowing Judge Newlin's opposition to capital punishment, Brent pleaded guilty. Intense feeling is aroused by the light sentence.

Fire Company Quits in a Body.

Michigan City, Ind., Dec. 1.—The city's fire department is badly crippled by the resignation of one of the companies, including the captain. An alarm of fire sounded at midnight. This company was slow to respond, and the captain and his men were called to account. They were accused of sleeping, which they denied. A dispute ensued and the men refused to go to work.

Woman Heads Bar Association.

Sullivan, Ind., Dec. 1.—Mrs. A. D. Leach, who made the race for representative on the Equal Suffrage ticket and was defeated, and the only woman lawyer in Sullivan county, has been chosen president of the Sullivan County Bar association.

He Made No Explanation.

Winamac, Ind., Dec. 1.—S. L. Messmore, aged sixty, married one month ago and living near this city, was found dead hanging in his barn. No letter of explanation was left.

W. F. Peter, jr., made a business trip to Indianapolis this morning.

Beware of Ointments for Catarrh that Contain Mercury.

as mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescription from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is ten fold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. In buying Hall's Catarrh Cure be sure you get the genuine. It is taken internally and made in Toledo, Ohio, by F. J. Cheney & Co. Testimonials free.

When the kidneys are effected, life is in danger. Read what Foley Kidney Pills have done for your neighbor. Mr. Emmet Jackson, Bloomington, Ind., says: "For the past few years I have worked over turpentine which I think is the cause of my kidney trouble. It started with an acute pain in the back over the kidneys. I felt all out of sorts and was annoyed by an irregularity of the kidneys accompanied by a scalding and burning sensation. There was a continual tenderness in the loins and a general feeling of weakness that unfitted me for my daily work. My eyes began to bother me and I had terrible headaches with dizzy spells. At this time I commenced taking Foley Kidney Pills and soon improved under the treatment. I kept it up steadily and now thanks to Foley Kidney Kidney Pills am well and strong again."

A Bundle of Straws.

The administration of justice in the Sudan has its humors. D. C. Comyn tells in his "Service and Sport in the Sudan" of a woman who came before him complaining that her husband had married a young new wife. "She appeared in court with a bundle of short straws, quite four inches thick. When asked what she had to say she dramatically pulled out one straw, flung it on the ground, and said, 'He gives me no scent,' another straw. 'He gives me no soap,' and so on till about a third were on the ground. 'Well, go on,' said I. She looked at me for a minute and then said, 'These other straws are complaints which I won't tell a young man like you.'"

INDIANS WITNESS STATUE UNVEILING

INTERESTING CEREMONY IN BISMARCK.

SQUAW IS HONORED

Five Redskins in Native Garb Present at Dropping of Flag.

Bismarck, North Dakota.—At the capitol, when the statue of Sakakawea, the Bird woman, was unveiled recently, were five Indians in their native dress, representatives of tribes now living in the state—Sioux, Shoshone, Arickara and Grosventre. As the statue was in honor of the Indian woman who acted as guide for the Lewis and Clarke explorers when they made their trip to the Pacific coast and return, it was fitting that representatives of the disappearing race or red men should sit where they did, around the speakers' platform in the capitol. While the monument was being unveiled the Indians were grouped about the pedestal.

Crow Ghost was one of the most interesting of the Indians. He is an Arickara of the old school and, dressed in his buckskin suit and elaborate feathered headdress, he looked the typical redskin of the old days. Solemn of visage, without a sign to indicate that he was taking any interest in the talk going on, it could still be seen that he was alive to his surroundings and their significance. Crow Ghost has two sons, High Flying Eagle and Hangan Crow Ghost. The latter is attending school at Carlisle.

Crow Ghost does not speak English, but with Peter Beauchamp acting as interpreter he told of some of his early experiences. He said that while he was never engaged in battle he had acted as scout on various occasions and had been connected with several small wars. Crow Ghost is engaged in farming, and with the assistance of his son is one of the successful tillers of the reservation.

Mattie Johnson is a Shoshone and of the same tribe as Sakakawea. She is a type of the Indian maiden of story, straight and tall, with a wealth of straight black hair hanging down to her waist in long braids. At the ceremony at the capitol she was dressed in a buckskin suit decorated with beads and other ornaments. Her complexion is clear and her features regular.

She is a graduate of the Haskell government school and at the present time is employed in the Bismarck school as instructor in the laundry department. Miss Johnson talks well of her life and work and is clever in every way. Her father's name is Honee, and she often is amused at the effort of white persons to get the proper pronunciation.

Peter H. Beauchamp, another Arickara present, is one of the most successful Indian farmers on the Berthod reservation and is doing much for the betterment of his brothers in the way of getting them acquainted with better methods in farming and living. Mr. Beauchamp attended school at the government school at Ft. Stephenson and later was graduated from Hampton.

James Holding Eagle was present, too. He was one of the young Indian men who went to Chicago to pass upon the model for the statue of Sakakawea. He is a Grosventre and the son of Holding Eagle, who is in turn the son of Moves Slowly, one of the most noted medicine men of the tribe, and of Scattered Corn, the only woman of the tribe who has ever been vested with the honors of a "medicine man."

Holding Eagle was graduated from the Santee school. He takes a great pride in doing religious work among his people, is an accomplished musician and has been delegate to church meetings in the state. He has also been employed at various times by the State Historical society in making models of old villages and in arranging historical data for publication.

Another delegate was Martin Levans, one of the younger Grosventres, who is attending the Bismarck Indian school. His Indian name is Black Cloud, and his father's name was Hard Horn. His parents are farmers on the Berthod reservation, and he intends, as soon as he completes his education to engage in the same business.

Both James Holding Eagle and Black Cloud said when asked about Sakakawea that they had no recollection of hearing their relatives talk of her until after the movement for a monument was started. Holding Eagle stated that when Sakakawea died she was taken back to her old Shoshone home in western Montana, for burial. Nothing is known of what became of the child she carried on her back on the trip to the Pacific coast and return, nor of her other children.

Martini Little Warrior, a Sioux of Dakota, of the Yankton branch of the tribe, was another interested Indian present. She has attended school at Ft. Yates, but is now at Bismarck school. Her father's Indian name is Zuyachika, which translated means Little Warrior, and her mother's name is Mary Four Claws.

AUTO COLOR SCHEMES.

"We're driven to our wits' end," said the head of a big automobile agency, "in trying to cater to customers who demand originality and individuality in the color scheme of each machine they order. The cry for 'something different' is what we get tired of hearing. With all the luxurious cars which pass up and down our streets every day it's no easy job to meet the demand for originality. Where a limousine is to be of solid dark color we always try to get a shade that is more or less unusual and then give some individual touch by painting the wheels a contrasting color and perhaps outlining the paneling to match. When a striped body is wanted we have to resort to all sorts of schemes to be original. Two shades of the same color in alternating stripes with a couple of hairlines of black, white or yellow between is a good combination, and by varying the width of the stripes it's possible to obtain many different effects even with the same colors. Moldings of contrasting color are always effective. One stunning machine we sent out last week was a dull olive with black moldings just outlined with a hairline of white. Another good idea which takes well is to introduce a contrasting color or shade in the little panel in the door. Women are especially interested in the color schemes of their machines and often bring up samples of the exact color they want used."—New York Sun.

A DRINK IN GOTHENBURG.

From Gothenburg, Sweden, a correspondent writes: "The difficulties under which wine and spirit merchants labor nowadays here may be judged from the following incident. When I went to buy a bottle of whisky the other day I was told: 'We are not allowed to sell wine or spirits over the counter.' 'What in the world do you mean?' I asked. 'No, it must be ordered in advance.' 'But I want the whisky at once!' The assistant meditated and then said: 'If you go across the street and telephone to use from the cigar shop we can supply you.' I telephoned and five minutes later I had the whisky. I went for another bottle the next day and found the regulations had become more stringent. Although I had ordered it by telephone, I was not allowed to take it home myself! I expostulated and the wine merchant said: 'But if your son here with you will accept sixpence for delivering the bottle at your home I could let you have the whisky at once.' My son had no objection."—Chicago News.

THE OLDEST FAMILY.

The Austrians are known to be the greatest "sticklers" for genealogy, many of the nobles tracing their descent back to almost the dawn of history. Even in Austria, however, it is generally admitted that the Dukes of Norfolk represents the oldest family in the world. According to the most trustworthy authorities the Howards are of Saxon origin, the name in those days being Hereward. So far back as 957 there are trustworthy records of the family—London Globe.

PAINTED HIS HOUSE WITH OPIUM

Silas Morgan, living on Whidbee Island, Washington, found several dozen cans containing a substance resembling paint, and believing a case of red paint had washed ashore, painted his house with the material. On taking a sample to town he was told that the sticky fluid was pure opium and each can was worth about $300. As he had used or spilled nearly thirty cans of the opium he had wasted more than $9,000.—Greenville News.

Extinction of Chinaberry Tree.
The Atlantic Coast Line has taken steps looking to the extermination of the chinaberry tree. It has long been claimed that this tree is a breeder of the white fly, and as the government has taken a hand and the experts have declared that the pest is bred to an alarming extent in the chinaberry tree, we can but commend the action of the coast line in the matter, and we hope the step they have taken will encourage others in this country to follow suit. The coast line has given orders that every china tree along its right of way in Florida be cut down.—Fort Meyers Press.

Theater As A Sanctuary.

Of sanctuaries for the eighteenth century debtor the value of the patent theater must not be overlooked. So long as the actor was in the bounds of the playhouse he was safe. There was John Palmer, for instance, who lived in his dressing room at Drury Lane for months. But engagements—even at Drury Lane—come to an end, and at length Palmer was required at the Haymarket. The journey was a dangerous one. Necessity, however, always fosters invention. They packed him in a cabinet in a cart, and called him "scenery."—London Chronicle.

"No substance that refuses to dissolve in water has an odor," says a writer. "For it is the actual substance itself, floating in particles in the air, that appeals to the nose, and not simply a vibration of the air, as in the case of light and sound. The damper a thing is the more powerful the odor it gives off. A pleasant proof of the fact can be had by walking in a garden after rain."

NOVEL NEWSPAPER OFFICE.

Perhaps the most picturesquely situated newspaper office in the country is that of the Megaphone at Quillcene, Wash., says the Christian Science Monthly. The owner is M. F. Satterlee, a pioneer newspaper man. He says:

"It is hardly possible there is another newspaper in the world situated in a similar way to the Megaphone establishment. On the one hand, within less than four rods of the office, is a virgin forest, extending back to Walker Mountain, while on the other are the waters of the Pacific Ocean, which pay daily visits within 100 feet of the huge water wheel driving the Megaphone press. The wheel is turned by a sparkling mountain stream that flows in front of the office and then empties into the bay. We can reach out the window of the establishment and pick from the tree early transparent apples, while within five feet are apples of eight other kinds, and pears, prunes, plums and cherries are but a few steps away."

Of wild fruit there are blackberries and salmon berries within rifle range of the editorial desk. Then we can go out on a wharf 200 feet from the office door, and catch salmon, trout, perch and rock cod, while the beach is one spread of clam beds; and fuel, in the shape of fir bark, broken in proper lengths for the office stove, floats to us on every tide, as it loosens from the log booms in tow to the mills. The Megaphone office nestles at the foot of Walker Mountain, whose shadow in summer falls upon the spot at 4 p. m., and where the morning sun, flashing across the Taraboo Peninsula, casts its beam at an early hour. In winter the place is sheltered from the blasts of the sou'easters which roar over the sound. From the Megaphone place can be seen the moonbeams glistening on the waters of Quillcene Bay and miles out on Hood Canal.

THEY CONSIDERED IT.

In Illinois there is an old law on the statute books to the effect that in criminal cases the jury is "judge of the law as well as of the facts." Though not often quoted, once in a while a lawyer with a desperate case makes use of it. In one case the judge instructed the jury that it was to judge of the law as well as the facts, but added that it was not to judge of the law unless it was fully satisfied that it knew more law than the judge. "An outrageous verdict was brought in, contrary to all instructions of the court, who felt called upon to rebuke the jury. At last an old farmer arose, 'Judge,' said he, 'weren't we to judge the law as well as the facts?' 'Certainly,' was the response; 'but I told you not to judge the law unless you were clearly satisfied that you know the law better than I did.' 'Well, Judge,' answered the farmer, as he shifted his quid, 'we considered that p'int.' Argonaut.

BALLOONACY.

There's always room at the top for a balloon.

A balloon in the air is worth two in the sea.

The difference between a balloon and an automobile is that a balloon may pass over a million people at full speed and not hurt one of them.

A chauffeur may be naughty, but a balloon driver is aeronaut.

It is "all up" with a balloon when it comes down, Bang!

One may have high times in a balloon, but everybody in sight knows about it.

However much one may be displeased with a balloon, he doesn't want to "take a fall out of it."

One kind of airships are all Wright.

An aeroplane ought to be on the level, but sometimes it is not.

When an airship gets the drop on you, it's time to land.—Lippincott's Magazine.

ENCLOSING THE STAMP.

"There's only one decent way to inclose a stamp for a reply," said the head of a large business, "and that is to use one of the stamps from the outside rows of a sheet with a blank margin that can be stuck upon the letter and leaves the stamp ready for use. Any other way either loses the stamp or else spoils it for use. But I found today a trick that is pretty good. Most people inclose the stamp by sticking it down at one corner and then you have to paste that corner down when you use the stamp. The new trick is to wet the stamp in a little space in the center and stick it there. It pulls off easily, yet when you use the stamp all the edges have gum enough to stick."

Courtship by Pants.

"Recently one of our most fastidious young men bought a pair of overalls and found in them the name of the sewing girl who made them," says the Muscotah Record. "He very promptly wrote her a letter with all the effusiveness necessary in such a case and in due time received a reply, which, however, was void of the romance usual in such cases. Here it is: 'I am a working girl, it is true, but I make a good living and I do not care to support a husband, as I would do if I married some silly noodle who gets mashed on a girl he never saw. Permit me to say that I do not know how my card got in that pair of overalls, and that when I do marry, if ever, it will be some fellow who can afford something better than a 47-cent pair of breeches.'"

FATE OF DEPOSED REMAINS MYSTERY

WHEREABOUTS OF ABDUL HAMID
ID PUZZLE TO ALL EUROPEAN NATIONS.

MAY HAVE ESCAPED

Abdul Hamid, Who Bathed Empire in Blood, Drops Completely
From Sight.

London, Eng. — What has become of the deposed Sultan Abdul Hamid, who for 30 years deluged his empire with blood, kept 200,000 spies to betray their fellow citizens, tricked the diplomats of Europe and shocked the world by his sensuality and his crimes? Is the question posed by a Turkish correspondent of the Westminster Gazette. He continues to interrogate as follows:

Has he been quietly put out of existence?

Has he escaped from his prison?

Is he secretly directing the government from Constantinople, or is he in hiding in some other part of world—in America, for instance?

Certainly the ex-sultan is no longer living at the Villa Allatini, Salonika, which was set apart for him as a residence prison, writes Gaston Tallefer, in an American paper.

He was sent there on April 27, 1909, when the revolution, brought about by the Young Turk party, was finally completed, and the Sultan Rashad ascended the throne.

Abdul's suite, allowed him in his prison, was composed as follows: Three sultanas, or full wives; five halfas, or lady housekeepers, privileged to go out of the harem; two prince, his daughter and nine servants. This really gave him the modest allowance of 12 wives.

Determined to ascertain the truth, if possible, I made a journey to Salonika, where I have long had friends. One of these occupies, fortunately, a house on the road to Villa Allatini, and I was immediately invited to stay there. I told my host I wished to see the ex-sultan.

"But you can not see him," said my friend, "because he is not there."

"Not there?" I exclaimed. "But where is he?"

"I do not know where he is. All I know is that he is not in Salonika."

Pursuing the mystery further I found at last a Macedonian politician of great popularity who was more communicative with me.

"Do you not remember how the ladies of the harem went away some months ago on the pretext that a daughter of the sultan was to be married?" he said. "Well, there was no wedding. They went away by night. We saw 13 of these women go out of the villa, although we knew that only 12 women came in originally. One of the 13 stooped very much, had a long, hooked nose, and walked with a tottering step. We believe that was the sultan."

"I have close relations here with the shopkeepers and others able to learn the facts. I know no provisions are delivered at the Villa Allatini since that night departure. I know that three days afterward the German Bank handed over the great sum of money belonging to the sultan he had on deposit, and which they had always refused to hand over without the sultan's signature. He had said he would sooner die than give his signature. Yet he gave it. That sum of money was the price the sultan paid in order to be removed from Salonika to Constantinople, or wherever he wanted to go."

Here then at last was a plausible explanation of the mystery. The wicked old sultan sneaked away in the clothes of a poor woman who had been his wife and slave for years. He paid the government for the privilege.

Just where Abdul Hamid is and what he is doing is, therefore, a mystery, and is likely to remain one until he is exhibited to the public again, dead or alive.

Meanwhile many incidents occur to remind the newly organized Turkish people of the peculiarities of their late ruler. A girl named Josefa Schneider has brought suit against the doctors of the Italian hospital for ill treating her during the reign of Abdul Hamid.

From this case it appears that the sultan's favorite daughter was suffering from a dangerous attack of appendicitis, and the European doctors advised him that an operation was necessary to save her life. The sultan inquired about the nature of the operation and was shocked at the idea of having his daughter cut open.

"Show me first," he said, "that you can do this without killing a person and I may let you operate on my daughter. If you cure her I will pay you any price you ask."

The doctors immediately seized the first helpless person they met. It happened to be the girl Schneider, who was leaving the hospital after recovering from a minor ailment. In spite of her outcries they shoved her in a carriage and carried her off to the imperial palace. An operation room was prepared there, and they removed the girl's appendix under the eyes of the sultan, who watched the process with close attention. She recovered quickly, and then the sultan allowed the operation to be performed on his daughter.

The Turkish parliament discussed the disposition of the five hundred wives Abdul Hamid left behind him

It is suspected that a large deposit of money still lies concealed beneath the lake in the grounds.

Abdul Hamid lived in an atmosphere of blood, intrigue and corruption that must be incomprehensible to anybody outside of Turkey. For years he had occupied the center of a vast palace that was like an enormous spider's web, of which he only knew the snares and traps and pathways. He directed the actions of 100,000 spies. He kept 1,000 books, in which the doings of his spies and the actions of those he was watching were recorded.

There were 1,000 secret rooms in this palace, rooms filled with treasure, rooms for torture, rooms for curious recreation.

Twenty miles of underground passages led in various directions, enabling the sultan to go where he pleased in secret. Some of these passages led to the harbor, so that he could slip away to a foreign country.

The Yildiz kiosk was indeed like an evil palace of the "Arabian Nights."

He was so timorous that he almost fainted when he showed himself in public, yet he directed the actions of thousands of fearless desperadoes.

He was an amazingly good revolver shot, although he could not aim without resting his elbow on a support or clutching his right arm with his left.

At the least suspicious movement of a servant in the palace, Abdul Hamid shot him dead for security and practice. That was his sport.

One day a beautiful young Circassian girl, recently added to the harem, was in his presence. Her eye rested on the pistol by accident. The sultan thought the action suspicious.

"What is that thing for?" he asked.

"To shoot with," she answered, innocently.

"Let us see," said the sultan. He picked up the pistol and immediately shot her dead.

Although Abdul Hamid made use of the most fanatical of his Moslem subjects it is doubtful if he had a vestige of belief in their religion. He had a profound appreciation of all that was worst in European civilization. He indulged in every form of sensuality that his physical feebleness permitted. His private collection of French literature and art amazed the beholders.

TO SELL MARK TWAIN'S LIBRARY

In a few weeks the library of the late Samuel L. Clemens will be sold at auction. This, like other instances of its kind, seems a great pity. There is a personality or at least an individuality, about a carefully selected library which deserves a longer lease of life than usually comes to it. To men of culture and refinement who have the means there is no occupation in life of more enjoyment or profit than collecting a library—not a collection of books for show, but one for personal reading. The man who loves books loves nothing of a material sort so well. Yet practically all such collections are dissipated under the auctioneer's hammer.

We have so many books these days, so many free libraries that a private library seems to have lost the commanding importance it once possessed. Down at the Ridgway branch of the Philadelphia library may be seen in a room the Loganian library, the collection which belonged to the friend and deputy of William Penn. Even in the new world the young Logan found time to enjoy literature, and his collection of books was the finest in this hemisphere. It is a pleasure to have it unimpeded to this day. One feels he knows the man better after spending some hours in that room, even if he is not so familiar with Greek and Latin as the original owner.

Aside from those volumes which are highly prized by "collectors," and are valued for other than mere literary worth, almost every private library sold at auction goes for a fraction of its original cost—twenty-five per cent being a liberal estimate. Yet the books are more valuable than when new because they have intimate associations with a scholarly man, not to mention autographs or notes frequently found. We put too large a premium upon mere newness. Second-hand bookstores contain many rich treasures which can be bought for very little.

It seems a pity that a carefully selected library cannot maintain its existence and be appreciated as in the owner's time. But such is not the spirit of the age. It is a pity, for as Bacon remarked, "Reading maketh the full man," and almost every one wastes precious hours which might be devoted to informing and entertaining books.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

tion of Manuscript—Dis- playing Orders. is con temporary dealing with ve of great men for animals an amusing account of Chat- briand and his monkey. When he engaged in preparing Fontane's works for the press on returning one day he was met by his monkey. "Ah, you rogue," said Chateaubriand, "your shamefaced look tells of mischief." The monkey was chained up, but as things did not appear much disturbed Chateaubriand thought no more of the matter until it was time to resume work. Fontane's manuscripts were not to be found.

At last Chateaubriand looked into the waste paper basket and there were the manuscripts. The monkey had watched his master, and as he had seen him fold a sheet of paper and tear it into four, so he had dealt with Fontane's writings. With much labor they were pieced together and afterward published.

Chateaubriand thought it advisable to see what else the monkey had done. His orders had disappeared from a drawer which was always kept closed. The servants searched everywhere for them, but they were not to be found. Nearly a week elapsed before they were traced, and then a domestic noticed that the monkey had suspended them to the cornice in a quasi symmetrical way.

The monkey was given his congé and Chateaubriand replaced him by a cat, which was allowed a place on his master's writing table, and great was the pleasure which he deprived in playing with puss.—London Globe.

HE COLLECTS PASSPORTS.

There is one man in this city who has an odd fad, which is apparently the collecting of seals of the Department of State. He does not often go abroad, in fact he has been on the other side probably no more than four times in the course of his life, and he is now around 50. But for about twenty years he has been in the habit of applying annually for a passport. He writes to the department of state, gets an application blank and has it filled out. He goes to the same notary every time and pays the fees. Then he sends his application and the passport fee to the department and gets his passport back in due course.

Passports are valid for two years, without renewal, yet he never misses a year and he fills out a new application every time. Thus he has a collection of papers and seals running back over these years. He never had occasion to use a passport when abroad, but he says it has been a help to him when travelling in this country as a means of identification when that has become necessary in some city in which he was a stranger. The chief idea he has is that some time it might be imperative for him to leave for a foreign country on some business or other and having the passport he would not have to delay for it.—New York Sun.

GETS A PAIL OF PENNIES.

A pail of conscience money passed through here a few days ago en route from Dysart to a merchant at Buffalo Center. The pail was sent by express, collect, the charges being 55 cents. The consignee was Charles Leibsohn, who is at a loss to know who sent him the "easy money."

On opening the pail Mr. Leibsohn found two sacks containing 2,740 pennies and a note saying, "You are my friend; you have this coming," and signed, "Your Friend, Nothing Else." The pail containing the mysterious shipment was a small-sized candy pail that originally came from the Johnson Biscuit company of Sioux City, and shipped to F. Nye, at Lake Park, Iowa. The sacks were the usual bank sacks, one bearing the name of a Cedar Rapids institution. The pennies weighed 19 pounds.

The shipment is shrouded in mystery, and the consignee says it is either a bit of conscience money or a good joke. If the latter, it is the best one he ever had played on him, he says—Iowa Falls, Cor. St. Paul Dispatch.

Decayed Families.

We have known Morleys who were entirely ignorant of the race from which they came. Sometimes it is far otherwise. The family of Conyers is a remarkable example. It ended in the last baronet, Sir Thomas, who died in 1810 without male issue. He would have passed away in the parish workhouse of Chester street and not Robert Surtees of Mainsforth, the historian of the County Palatine of Durham, and other generous neighbors intervened. To the last he showed that he was well aware of the dignity of the house he represented, and for some time declined to receive assistance from his friends. Another remarkable case is that of Grenville. This family was noteworthy in the wars of the Caroline period, yet as time passed sank so low that two of its members were at one time receiving parish relief, and one of them, evidently by some mistake which it is difficult to account for, was twice pricked for High Sheriff at the very time he was a pauper.

It is not in the nostril that the sense of smell lies, but in the upper third of the nose. There the red lining of the nostril changes into brown, and becomes much more sensitive.

INAUGURATION CROWD BARRED

Diaz and Corral Not Willing to Take Chances.

CEREMONY STRICTLY PRIVATE

Beside the Cabinet and Diplomatic Corps, Attendance at Inauguration of Mexican President and Vice President Today Was Limited to a Very Few Privileged Ticket Holders—Streets Lined With Soldiers.

Mexico, City, Dec. 1.—It is said that Gen. Reyes is coming home from Europe to become vice-president in place of Corral, with a view of succeeding Diaz in a short time, just as it had been intended that Corral should do. This it is believed will quiet much agitation.

City of Mexico, Dec. 1.—The inauguration of President Diaz and Vice President Corral today took place in the School of Mines building instead of the new chamber of deputies, as had previously been arranged. The excuse given is that the new building is not ready for use, but it is whispered about that the change was made to keep a crowd away from the place where the inaugural ceremonies were held. The School of Mines has not one-fifth the capacity of the new building. All the members of the cabinet and high government officers and diplomats were present. No one else except those holding special invitations, and these were few, were in attendance. The streets were lined with a double row of soldiers.

Diaz and Corral appeared before the speaker of the house of deputies and promised in simple language to conduct the affairs of the country for the next six years as they have done the last six.

The speaker then said: "If you do the nation will reward you. If you do not the nation will hold you responsible." Many hundred extra secret police were sworn in as deputies for the inauguration ceremonies.

BLAMES THE BROKERS

Stock Exchange Machinations Behind the Trouble, Says Diaz.

City of Mexico, Dec. 1.—Delegations of leading citizens of many parts of the country have called on President Diaz during the last few days and given him personal assurance of the loyalty to the government of the people of their respective localities. In responding to an address of this kind by Luis Lopez Masse, prosecuting attorney of the general district, and a native of the state of Oaxaca, made by Mr. Masse on behalf of the people of that state, President Diaz said: "The present difficulty does not merit my personal attention to the agitators, but if the occasion should arise, wherein a force of even 5,000 men should oppose the government, I shall be there, as I have ever been, at the head of my troops."

Bonds Lose Several Points.

"The government is possessed of sufficient force to subdue the small seditious groups which have been disturbing the public peace. These movements, which in reality are of insignificant importance, but which the press has given large proportions, I attribute to stock exchange machinations, our bonds having lost several points through the false alarm. In a way, however, it is a manifestation of confidence in our country, inasmuch as those same speculators know that as soon as order is re-established, values will reassume a normal state." Referring further to the insignificance of the movement and the disrepute into which the agitators have fallen, the president told of the case of a certain man who made a trip along the Pacific coast with the intention of gathering recruits, offering in recompense a salary of two pesos per day, "and in one whole week," he said, "do you know how many he recruited?—seven."

Created Alarm on the Border.

El Paso, Texas, December 1.—A bunch of Mexican insurgents are reported to have invaded Texas. Sheriff J. Walton and deputies have left Alpine for Chisos, 80 miles south on the Mexican line, in response to a telephone message from Surveyor Dodd, who declared that an armed band had approached the place.

THEY WANT TO KNOW

Ontario Orangemen Worked Up Over Speaker's Use of Robes.

Ottawa, Ont., Dec. 1.—The eucharistic congress held in Montreal last summer, is to be the subject of a bitter debate in the house of commons this week, when the questions asked by Ontario Orangemen relating to the speaker of the house of commons having worn his official robes while taking part in the congress, will be discussed. The speaker's uniform is paid for by parliament, and his gown last year cost the country $75, his suit $65 and his official trousers $10. The Orangemen claim that this valuable government property was misused at the congress.

NEWSY PARAGRAPHS.

It is expected that Judge Shea, who has been sick will be able to hold court by next Monday.

The company of the "Flaming Arrow" arrived here this morning from Washington and will present the play at the Majestic this evening.

Nearly all of the trains coming into the city were late this morning on account of the cold weather. The early morning train on the Pennsylvania lines due here at 5:55 was over four hours late and the other trains on that road were far behind their schedule. The B. & O. train also scheduled to arrive here at 9:08 a. m. was over an hour late and No. 7 west bound was behind time. Some of the trains were pulled by two engines.

HE SAVED A LIFE

And Now This Indiana Man Is to Get a Reward.

Anderson, Ind., Dec. 1.—William Spurrier, for whom inquiry has been made by the father of Lieutenant M. E. Smith of the U. S. S. Pennsylvania, in order that he might reward him for saving the life of his son, has been found in this city, and will at once communicate with the father who lives in New York city. Spurrier is married and is employed in a factory. He says it is true that he saved the life of Lieut. Smith, but not from drowning as first reported. Spurrier caught Smith as he was about to fall into machinery in the hull of the Pennsylvania and saved him from certain death. In doing so Spurrier's arm was broken and he was otherwise painfully hurt. He expected no reward and was surprised by the inquiry of Smith's father, who is said to be a wealthy retired merchant.
